

ABSTRACT

A position sensor for a medical device comprises a core made of a high permeable material such as Wiegand effect material comprising a mixture of cobalt, vanadium, and iron. The position sensor has an outer diameter of approximately 0.4 mm and is used in a medical device having an outer diameter of approximately 0.67 mm.